CLA 102: FTA's & Duty-Savings Programs

Companies are often pressured to reduce the costs of imported merchandise. This course is designed to introduce employees of importers and customs brokers to the free trade agreements and other special programs available to importers to assist them in reducing or eliminating duties paid on imported merchandise.

Most of these programs have very complicated requirements that must be met in order to claim the duty-free status. Brokers and importers should be familiar with the existence and general benefits of each program in order to provide alternatives to the payment of duties for imported merchandise.

Includes final exam. Certificate provided upon successful completion.

Full year's access for multiple users. Automatically renewed.

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES

- Key Facts Charts for each Free Trade Agreement containing an overview, eligibility requirements and key fact summary for each program.
- A comparative chart containing basic information for all of the special trade programs.

CMP 101: Import Compliance I

With increased import and export compliance requirements placed on businesses, international compliance has become a full-time function for many companies. Implementing and maintaining a good compliance program can be an expensive undertaking; however, the potential benefits usually offset the costs. Compliance programs often save the company money by finding opportunities to improve the supply chain process and preventing the company from being assessed penalties that far exceed the expenses of compliance. Understanding the rules and adapting your processes for compliance can mean cost savings. A failure to respond to the regulatory requirements can result in costly penalties and potential embarrassment to the company. This course provides information about some of the elements that importers can use to demonstrate compliance.

Includes multiple-choice final exam and certificate upon successful completion.

Full year's access for multiple users. Automatically renewed.

CMP 201: C-TPAT Start to Finish

Implemented in November 2001, C-TPAT is a voluntary joint government-business initiative to build cooperative relationships that strengthen overall supply chain and border security. CBP offers potential benefits to C-TPAT members, including a reduced number of cargo inspections, eligibility for account-based processes such as Importer Self-Assessment (ISA), and eligibility to attend CBP sponsored C-TPAT training seminars.

This course provides a detailed look at requirements for importer participation in C-TPAT, the validation process, and how to get and stay compliant. Even if your company has already applied and been accepted as a C-TPAT member, this course will help you understand the process involved in becoming a member and the responsibility of importers once they obtain membership.

Includes final exam. Certificate provided upon successful completion.

Full year's access for multiple users. Automatically renewed.

CMP 302: Intellectual Property Laws and Import Protection

Today's technological advancements and the ability of foreign manufacturers to produce lower cost goods present almost limitless opportunities for distribution of goods that are authorized by the IPR owner. However, this same technology and low cost production provide the same opportunities for proliferation of products that infringe on intellectual property rights. While the U.S. has well-defined laws for protection of intellectual property, not all countries provide or enforce the protection of intellectual property.

This course provides valuable information for both owners and importers of goods subject to intellectual property regulation. Owners of intellectual property will learn methods to protect their property from unauthorized use and importers will learn proper procedures to ensure their shipments comply with the legal requirements for importation

Includes multiple-choice final exam and certificate upon successful completion.

PRC 201: Intermediate Import Process

This course starts with a brief review of the basic import process; however, the primary focus for this course is to examine the process and responsibilities of the Import Function in more detail. The Import Function is primarily responsible for managing the entire import process, which includes coordinating entry of merchandise with brokers, Customs, and all internal departments to make sure that the process runs as smoothly as possible. While securing the release of merchandise satisfies buyers, manufacturing, customers and other parties, the role of the Import Function doesn't end with the release of imported merchandise.

The Import Function is responsible for recordkeeping, compliance with all CBP rules and regulations, responding to communications from CBP after the entry and much more. Throughout the course you will find links to various web sites and documents providing valuable information that can be used to make your job easier.

Includes multiple-choice final exam and certificate upon successful completion.

Tests & Certification

You'll have real-life, process-based exams, with certificates awarded upon completion.

Rather than relying only on multiple-choice questions, we've developed scenario-based tests that focus on real-world situations, and show the results of different choices, both good and bad.

Our tests don't merely grade; they teach. Learn the value of proper communication between departments, of standard security practices, of correct procedure... and more.
